GOOD LOGIC.

A Galveston man deposited several thousand dollars in a local bank and drew on it as he needed it. The other day he happened to meet his banker, who said, rather excitedly: "You have overdrawn your account by several hundred dollars."

"Well, what of it? It is my account. I reckon I can do what I please with my own account. This is a free country."

"Yes, but you owe me several hundred dollars."

"Well, suppose I do. You owed me ten times as much for ever so long, and I didn't make any fuss about it."

The depositor passed on leaving the banker standing on the sidewalk in a very dazed condition of mind.

Saphir was a remarkably ugly Jew, who was deformed in person, who lived several centuries ago in Germany, and who was a marvel of satirical wit. Nobody was known to have got the better of him in repartee. Many of his retorts have been handed down to the present times. The following was his style of talking back to people:

He was traveling in a stage coach in company with two Jesuits, who made allusions to the personal appearance of Saphir, and were disposed to make fun of him generally. He put up with it for some time, but finally he asked:

"Who are you two fellows, anyhow?"

"We belong to the Society of Jesus."

"Which society of Jesus, his first or last?"

"What do you mean?"

"Well, his first society were donkeys in the manger, and his last were thieves on Mount Calvary. Now I want to know to which of these societies you belong?"

The lady has lost her only child, and the friend who calls upon her to console her finds her plunged in a gulf of utter woe.

"But you must not give way to your grief in this manner,—you must try to bear up," says the well-meant friend.

"Oh, I know I shouldn't," sobs the afflicted parent, wringing her hands frantically, "but you know how I am—the merest trifle upsets me!"

England's revenue from drink is falling; and London Punch sarcastically remarks that "the Chancellor of the Exchequer is having a bad time and most of the journals are mournful. The workingman is not quite such a sot as he was, and the income-tax payers are trembling. In a country like England, which draws one-third of its imperial revenue from national drunkenness, this is a serious matter. Drink pays our army and navy, or it pays the interest on our Rule Britannia debt; and without drink we should have to look to what are pleasantly called 'other sources of revenue.' Let us hope that this national sobriety is only a passing cloud. We cannot for a moment think of reducing our expenditure."

THE EVILS OF PAINTING

And their Remedy.

"It has been said with much truth,

too, that house painting might, with study and acquirement of taste, resume its rank as a liberal art."—Painters'

Manual.

Believing the above to be true, A. B.

KERR has now re-organized his system of working the business in Honolulu.

In the first place he has secured the services of that celebrated artist, Mr. MAX

KOHN, formerly of San Francisco, whose work in the line of plain and decorative paper-hanging, frescoing, &c., is up to the present time unsurpassed, and on these Islands has never been equalled.

For house painting jobs first-class mechanics only will be employed. In future patrons can depend upon my filling every order on the most scientific basis known to the trade.

The Sign Painting and Lettering department will be permanently presided over by Mr. GEO. STRATMEYER, (further comment unnecessary.)

P.S.—Send for designs of frescos for ceiling and cornices. Something new;
